City has peaceful holiday:

Wheat field burns, but fireworks on 4th cause little damage

By Steve Marschke

West Sacramento -- a town where fireworks are illegal -- made it through the Fourth of July without major fire-related injuries or problems, reported Fire Marshal Mike Foley.

"We did great until this afternoon," Foley said yesterday, on July 5. "We don't know if it's related to the Fourth of July, but about 75 acres burned this afternoon."

Foley was referring to a brush fire that began around midday in Southport, West Sacramento's southern half. The fire consumed 75-80 acres of a wheat field near the Arlington Oaks subdivision, west of Jefferson Blvd. and south of the barge canal.

Foley added that the fire didn't get any closer "than about 200 yards" from the nearest structure. The fire was contained without incident, and no injuries occurred. The only significant property damage was to the wheat crop, which Foley said he thought was being farmed by resident Lou Arges, who presumably leased the land from the Port of Sacramento.

The cause of the fire is being investigated.

Meanwhile, two suspicious structural fires occurred elsewhere in West Sacramento over the holiday weekend; both in structures frequented by transients.

The fires did not appear to be related to fireworks, although they occurred on July 4.

"We lost one building that was vacant, near the Tower Bridge," said Foley. "We had a fire at another building that we're seriously looking at as being an arson fire on Duluth."

The fire on the South River Road structure near the Tower Bridge was severe enough to warrant the demolition of that building, but the Duluth St. structure suffered less.

In both cases, it is suspected that arson was involved and "someone had an axe to grind with someone else," said Foley. Investigators are working on the cases.

In the town's only significant fireworks-related accident, a "bottle rocket" reportedly set fire to a tree on Park Blvd., and the fire spread to cause minor damage to an adjacent house.

Hundreds drop in on local festival

The first ever "Celebrate West Sacramento" festival, held Saturday near Jefferson Blvd. and West Capitol Avenue in West Sacramento, was a rousing success, said one local organizer.

"At any given time, there were at least 200 people milling around," said Helena Helmold of the day-long event. "There were 27 booths."

The vendors and display booths set up in the parking lot on the southeastern corner of the intersection, near La Bou, Little Caesar's and other local businesses. The theme of the event was West Sacramento's ethnic diversity.

Included were booths representing Portuguese, Laotian and other heritages. Visitors could buy Indian tacos, Mexican tamales, egg rolls and hot dogs. Also included were dance and other displays.

"Balliamo, an Italian folk dancing group, did a show for us. Barbosa's Karate came over and did a fantastic exhibition for us," said Helmold.

"It was a very, very good thing. This was put together with about a thousand dollars and a lot of volunteers. It was all community people -- that's what West Sacramento can do when it tries."

The event was organized by a number of local residents, such as Helmold, and co-sponsored by Yolo Unite, a county-wide organization dedicated to fighting the abuse of alcohol and other drugs.

School supe: Southport taxes are cut

By David Weller

The Washington School Board, following the recommendation of the Superintendant of Schools, voted June 23 to significantly change the Mello-Roos tax district in the Windsor Meadows neighborhood in Southport. The change is expected to reduce the yearly special tax burden on about 200 households in that neighborhood by about 25 percent. In addition, the change imposes a time limit of seven years on the assessment district.

"It's the most fair thing I've seen done in this neighborhood since I've been here," said Tom Julian. Julian, who lives in Windsor Meadows, has been a vocal opponent of the tax district for the last two years.

He told the board at a regular meeting in May that the developers who built and sold the houses in the neighborhood had deceived the buyers about amount of taxes that would be assessed and about the number of years the tax district would be in existance.

He also told the board at that meeting that Windsor Meadows has a big enough voting block to spoil any attempt the school district makes in the future to pass bond measures if the district did not fix the inequities in the tax district.

The Mello-Roos district has been in existance since October of 1990. It was instituted with the approval of the school board by developers Elmond Development and Windsor Meadows Group as a means of raising funds for school facilities made necessary by new developement in the area.

Some people who bought homes in the neighborhood have complained that they were not informed of the special taxes until they received their first tax bill. Others have said that they were told by the developers that the tax would only be a couple of hundred dollars a year, and that new school facilities would be built almost immediately.

The yearly bill has been between five and seven hundred dollars, and under the original plan, the assessment district was expected to be in existance for twenty-one to twenty-four years.

"This is a very major issue because it puts to bed some real pain in our community," said Superintendent Miller in a recent interview. Miller said he expects his proposal to the board to raise as much money for the schools as the old plan -- but in about one-third the time at a reduced cost to the taxpayers.

"First of all, the amount of money generated by the Mello-Roos was not adequate to build a school. The reason it was going to go on for so long and the taxes were so high was that the district was going to sell bonds," he explained.

"I proposed to the board, and the board accepted at the last meeting that instead of selling bonds, we continue to collect the

McGowan readies for Nov. senate race

■ Local attorney, former mayor prepares for expensive, bruising race for state legislature

By Steve Marschke

Fresh from a decisive victory in the Democratic Primary, West Sacramento resident is ready to take on the Republican incumbent for the November election in the Fourth District State Senate District.

"Buckle your seatbelt and put on your helmet -- it's going to be a bumpy ride," McGowan said of the upcoming race.

The attorney said that his opponent, K. Maurice Johannessen of Shasta County, has a reputation for spending money and for campaigning vigorously.

"I'm anticipating that he's going to spend a million dollars-plus, and I honestly don't believe I have to match him," McGowan stated. "I am trying to raise as much money as I can."

The district, which represents 700,000 people, is geographically the second-largest state senate district in the state. It covers all of Yolo County, most of Solano, and the counties of Colusa, Sutter, Glenn, Tehama, Shasta, Trinity and Siskiyou."

"It reaches from the Oregon border to the Carquinez bridge," McGowan remarked.

He added that because of its geography, the district is sort of the "Sacramento River senate district," and whoever represents it must bear a major responsibility for issues surrounding the use of the river.

"Since the entire Sacramento River is in this district, whoever is the senator in this district has to be the pit bull as far as water rights are concerned. This senator is the Sacramento River senator."

And that opens up one of the criticisms McGowan has for his opponent, the conservative Johannessen.

The Republican, said McGowan, is "beholden" to several Southern California millionaires affiliated with the religious right. And from their geography, these people have far different plans for the water of the Sacramento river than those who live near it.

"Johannessen put $450,000 of his own money into the special election to get his seat, he raised $100,000, and took $150,000 from the Allied Business PAC (the Southern Cali-

School district eyes technology for students

By David Weller

The Washington School Board voted June 23 to spend $250,000 in lottery funds on techological development for instructional uses in the schools.

Specific uses for the funds have not been decided upon, but district officials are very excited about avenues of education that technological development can open up for the students.

"I believe very strongly that technology is something that if we do not introduce to our kids, if they are not familiar with it, if they do not know how to use it, then we have let them down when we graduate them," said Superintendent Miller.

He added that students who have access to computers and know how to use them are more likely to work on their writing skills. "They're going to write more, and they're going to write better." Assistant Superintendent for Personnel and Pupil Services Dr. Dennis Kelleher believes that a well designed technology program can help to reduce the unexcused absence rate. "We're going to get kids in who are going to be turned off of school because it's dull and boring. And if you infuse computers into the classroom and you can get these kids who would otherwise drop out saying, 'Hey, wait a minute, maybe there is something here for me,'" said Kelleher.

The primary responsibility for developing the program will fall upon Assistant Superintendent Dr. MacDonell. Because she is brand new to the district, she is just beginning to study proposals for technological development that have been submitted by staff at the school sites over the past year.

"The administrators and the teachers in this district have given technology considerable thought, and they have developed some plans. Like good dreamers they've dreamt well. Our task is going to be to get the staff and adminstrators to prioritize what they want, and to agree on a focus," she said.

MacDonell said that she wants the program to be cirriculum driven. Among the ideas these administrators are thinking about are dual platform computers (IBM and Macintosh), the use of CD-ROM technology, and the use of closed-circuit video, satellite links, and modem links into Internet to allow students to gain access to online databases and communication services.

Independence day celebrated the way it's supposed to be

My Back Pages

By Daryl Fisher

Independence Day has come and gone again, with its fireworks, family barbeques, small town parades, and the flying of American flags in front of neighborhood houses. Maybe it's just me, but for some reason, each passing year seems to bring smaller fireworks displays, a reduced number of family gatherings, not so many flags blowing back and forth in the breeze, and maybe most disappointing of all, fewer and fewer small town parades.

John Adams, one of this country's founding fathers, is reported to have said these words about Independence Day: "It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires and illuminations, from one end of this continent to the other from this time forward forevermore."

So, in that spirit, I was really happy to pick up the phone Monday morning and discover that a friend was inviting me and my sons to not only attend — but to be in — the Clarksburg 4th of July parade.

"It's not a real big deal," explained the voice on the other end of the line, "just a small town parade — but we'll throw your boys and mine into the Hudson and let Ty do the driving."

Ty, my oldest son, usually likes to sleep in on holidays until at least noon, but it only took him about five minutes to be and completely dressed when I told him he was going to get to drive an antique vehicle in a parade.

The Hudson turned out to be a 1913 four-door convertible, one of the first cars to have electric lights and a starter that did away with cranking by hand. It also had the steering wheel on the right hand side of the driver's seat, gears that needed some real expertise to shift, and the kind of nostalgic appearance that seemed to make just about everyone who saw it motoring along smile and wave.

When we arrived in Clarksburg, we quickly signed up to be in the parade, picked up a couple of bags of hard candy at the local store for the boys to throw to spectators along the parade route, and decorated the Hudson with some flags and red, white, and blue crepe paper.

Then we pulled into line with — among other people and things — Boy Scouts carrying a huge American flag overhead; gaily dressed young girls on horseback; a truck pulling its own crowded hay ride behind it; a 1917 fire truck; a ten-year-old Uncle Sam on roller skates; a half-dozen go-carts; a John Deere Gator mini-pickup overflowing with young men; a 1924 Chevy flatbed truck; assorted 1940's fire wagons; a young boy with a cowboy hat and six-shooters riding a stick horse which immediately reminded me of Midnight (my beloved old stick horse); and even a fully outfitted Santa Claus.

Clarksburg being the small farming community it is, the parade didn't last all that long, but it seemed like the whole town had turned out and the atmosphere reminded me of the kind of 4th of July celebrations I had always read about — where the townspeople began gathering early in the morning and spent the whole day and most of the night basking in their freedom and shared values.

Those celebrations — which once took place from coast to coast — started with baking contests and father and son gunny sack races and included band concerts, leisurely baseball games, firecrackers that were still legal to tote around in your pocket, the swearing in of new citizens, patriotic parades where people actually removed their hats when the American Flag passed, and maybe most anticipated of all, the fireworks display and the after sundown dance where men and women of all ages could get together to court and spark.

In time, maybe America will get as good at celebrating its differences as it once was at celebrating the things which united us all, but until then, it's good to know that small towns like Clarksburg still honor Independence Day in a way that would be recognizable to John Adams, and that there are still a few 1913 Hudson convertibles left to cruise along in on a warm July morning up on Waukeena Road.

New city service:

Waste oil recycling available

From the City of West Sacramento

Do-it-yourself oil changers now have an alternative to illegal dumping, improper storing or simply inefficient disposing of used motor oil. By obtaining an approved container from the city of West Sacramento, filing with used motor oil and placing at the curb along with regular garbage, homeowners have an easy-to-use oil recycling program.

Funded in part by the California Integrated Waste Management Board, the city has launched curbside oil pickup. With estimates of between 3,000 to 5,000 gallons of oil going to the landfill yearly, this alternative will allow a significant increase in the amount of oil recycled.

Spurred by state requirements to recycle, the city chose curbside recycling as a program to meet the needs of most residents.

"Do-it-yourselfers are the target of this program" says recycling coordinator Denise Kotko. "We know that after going to a store to purchase oil, then draining and changing the oil that most people don't have the energy or interest to make another trip to dispose of the oil."

That is if they can find a place to take it. In West Sacramento, there are only two non-commercial recyclers of used motor oil. The hours of operation are not always convenient for local residents. The new program allows the oil to be changed at the convenience of the resident and placed at the curb alongside the regular refuse. No driving or long-term storage required.

To begin recycling curbside, call 373-3720 and a used oil container will be delivered on your regularly scheduled refuse pick-up day.

Containers are also available at the department of finance, 2101 Stone Blvd. in West Sacramento. For more information on this or other household hazardous waste programs in West Sacramento, call the hotline at 372-0850.

SPORTS

Summer rowing at the Port

The UC Davis rowing team and the West Sacramento-based River City Rowing Club are offering several sessions of training in "crew" for high school-aged youth.

Crew (team rowing) is a prep, college and Olympic level sport. Participants will learn the basics of the sport, including optional weight training, during afternoon sessions at the Port of Sacramento in West Sacramento.

One upcoming session will last from July 11 to July 30, with on-the-water practices beginning at 4:00 p.m. Optional weight training begins at 5:30 p.m.

Another second session lasts from August 1 to August 20, with practices held at the same times of day.

During both sessions, students will be taught the technique of competitive rowing, which has little in common with "rowboat" style rowing.

An eight-person crew uses technique, skill, power and endurance to propel a 60-foot, 200 lb. racing "shell" over a race course. Experienced crews can cover the 1.25 mile standard race course in six or seven minutes.

The cost for one high school rowing session is $45, and includes a T-shirt and a barbeque dinner. High school students from all around the Sacramento area are invited. For more information, call coach Kevin Sherwood at 752-1886.

Local groups plans boxing exhibition for July 16 at West Sacramento park

A boxing exhibition will be held at 5:00 p.m. on Saturday, July 16, at San Pedro Park (708 North Hobson Aveue in West Sacramento).

The matchups will be sponsored by the Rodriquez Boxing Club and Powerhouse Ministries, Inc.

Admission will be $5 for anyone over 18, $2 for those between 12 and 17, and free to children 11 and under. Refreshments will be available.

Anyone interested in participating in the exhibition is asked to call 427-4554 or 371-8229.

CSU Sacramento offers aquatic sports camps to youths aged eight to 18

The CSU Sacramento Aquatic Center on Lake Natoma (off of Hazel Avenue, north of US 50 and east of the city of Sacramento) is offering a Summer Youth Aquatic Camp, which includes water safety and education.

Instruction in sailing, sailboarding, canoeing, kayaking, waterskiing, rowing and white water rafting will be offered to those aged 8-18, at both beginning and advanced levels. Camps will be held Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. through Aug. 26. and have already begun.

Each one-week session will cost $185 to $225 per camper. For more information, call 985-7239.

Opening lead — eight of hearts.

Bridge played at the highest level can be fascinating indeed. Here is an extraordinary example of high-class defense from a match played in 1970 between Holland and England.

With Holland North-South, the bidding went as shown. South's two club bid was conventional and indicated 5-5 or 6-5 distribution in the major suits.

West, Jonathan Cansino, partnered by Jeremy Flint, elected to lead a trump against four hearts. Declarer took EAst's king with the ace, cashed the K-A of spades, and ruffed a spade with dummy's nine as Cansino discarded the deuce of clubs.

Next came the queen of diamonds, taken by East with the king. East then cashed the queen of spades, on which Cansino discarded his ace of clubs! East thereupon cashed the king of clubs and continued with a club, promoting a trump trick for West whether declarer ruffed high or low, and as a result, the contract went down one.

It was all very fancy, but it was all very logical too. Cansino could tell from South's bidding, as well as the play, that declarer had started with precisely a 5-6-1-1 distribution.

Cansino also realized that the contract could not be stopped unless the defense could somehow score a trump trick. Without it, there was no hope. He therefore had to assume that East had the jack or ten of trumps, as well as the king of clubs, in which case discarding the ace of clubs on East's queen of spades was the only way to defeat the contract.

Miraculously, everything worked out exactly as Cansino had planned. It just goes to show that if you think hard enough — and pray hard enough — some of your best-laid plans will occasionally come to pass.

Survival Tool

A sewing machine is an appliance, a convenience. But for many people in the world's poorest countries, it means much more. A sewing machine means clothing. Clothing means money. Money means food for a hungry family overseas.

We turn a tap. Out comes clean water. But in too many places throughout the world, a drink of water can be a death sentence. So the construction of a well means survival. Because clean water means no dysentery. No dysentery means life for an entire community overseas.

Books. Our libraries are filled with them. But for children living in countries where reaching school age is, in itself, a miraculous accomplishment, a book can have almost magical powers. A book means learning. Learning means knowledge. Knowledge means a chance for a better life for a child living in poverty overseas.

These are but a few of the many tools for survival made possible by Childreach sponsorship through self-help partnerships with poor families and communities overseas.

But survival is just the beginning.

As a Childreach sponsor, your caring and generosity can help bring new hope and a real chance for a better life to a special child you will get to know through pictures and letters. For more information, mail the coupon below or call 1-800-240-9090. Do it now and discover how you can make a real difference in the world.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

West Sacto: nationally famous poets' colony (?)

Time to redefine how you look at West Sacramento:

We are a world class center of poetry. Really.

Dr. Richard Huntington of Hollywood says so. Not that he might be insincere, but Huntington (whose "Dr." degree isn't quite explained) is the "poetry director" director for a company which uses a common cash-generating scheme. He solicits poetry donations for a book he publishes, then later tries to sell everyone who contributed poems a copy of the book. Quality of literature is not the goal here.

This time, Huntington is piggy-backing on the nation's sympathy for the late Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

"Poetry was one of Jacqueline's great loves," says Poetry Director Dr. Richard Huntington, "and we are asking our nation's poets, beginners and professionals alike, to send a poem inspired by her life, which we will pass on as a collective tribute to the Kennedy family."

O.K. so far, but try to read this aloud, three times fast, without smiling:

"We want West Sacramento poets to be well represented, as they are among the best poets in the country. . ."

The magenta-and-white color scheme of the city's police cars will soon be replaced, and some will be sorry to see it go. The colors were a bit unique. Distinctive.

One resident called them "distinguished and exclusive," but that might be going a bit too far for anything connected to West Sacramento.

Still, the old colors (still on the cars) were a bit more pleasant to look at than the standard black-and-white which will replace them. Somehow, the red and white were friendlier, classier, less authoritarian.

Two reasons are given for the decision: one is as a symbol of change in the troubled young police department; and the second is to make the cars more identifiable to the civilians who may need them.

The cost of changing colors, about $7,000, is really an insignificant budgetary concern.

The first reason isn't really good enough. To change colors every time department morale gets low would lead to a lot of paint buildup on the patrol car doors.

But the second reason -- to make the cars more identifiable -- is good enough.

Aesthetics have to come second.

Police colors

Re: "Swatting at gnats instead of slaying those darn Dragons?" ("New cop car colors?," last week' News-Ledger)

Dear Citizens:

Police do not set the "style" for a city. West Capitol Boulevard "could" show the style of our city. There is a $37 million bond issue which has funds for improving the boulevard; yet, Helena on the economic commission stated her concerns regarding new police car colors. You want police to maintain an image of control and not sashay down the street like an elegant "knight."

Another $20 million bond issue has passed that has no time mandates or controls, so why are we worrying about a trivial $7,000 drop in the bucket, to paint the police cars so that they actually look like "law enforcement vehicles."

Our new Police Chief Gore came into an underfunded, understaffed force and is trying to use his knowledge to create a new image toward our hopes of a premier City. Now this city has some new blood, stand behind our Chief, and let him do the job. Who wants a "cute" police force.

Let's lay down the flyswatter and focus on the dragon.

On O.J.

I agree with Mr. Daryl Fisher's disgust with the media's having gone overboard (once again) with the O.J. Simpson story...it's as if ABC, CBS, and NBC hooked up to CNN and put all else on vacation, or re-runs at best. It is ironic that none of the Big Three can understand that such copycat scheduling leaves consumers with less than one alternative to CNN (of their three). And when "local news" is top-heavy with the one national story, very little local news is reported — they don't have time for local news!

Too bad hooking up to CNN is not done on an alternating, bidding or other basis so that at least two of the major three networks will offer the public other choices! (Even the smaller networks and independent stations spend too much time on such issues.) And does not such "overkill" lessen the accused's chances of a fair trial; i.e., when searching for jurors, what are the chances of finding sufficient numbers who have not heard a lot about the subject case and thus so formed an opinion?

Also disturbing is the trend toward ousting local officials (when such action seldom requires more than 20 percent of the voters...when turnout is less than 40 percent) for raising local "fees" to balance local budgets after the state took back that $2.8 billion last year under the guise of reclassifying prior years' Prop. 13 bailout assistance as "loans." The more the gridlock we see at the state and federal levels, the more the British Parliamentary form of government makes sense. Just maybe...we might see less of the "passing the buck" (of financial responsibility) to the next lower level government, eh?

Finally, it is indeed ironic that state leaders changed with passing a budget on time (without borrowing or otherwise "passing the buck") are recommended for an across-the-board 37 percent pay hike! Based on what? Are those recommending the 37 percent hikes subject to recall? They should be.

The church dedication last Sunday in Riverbank was largely attended by nearly all the people of the district. Many came from Sacramento and Woodland but the congregation was made up mostly of people of all sects whose homes are located in the district. Following the services a luncheon was served by the ladies in the oak grove near the church and several strangers partook of the hospitality of the hosts. The proceeds were devoted towards paying the debt of the Riverbank church.

FIREMEN'S CELEBRATION ON JULY FOURTH WAS A CREDIT TO THE BOYS OF WASHINGTON

A GREAT CROWD OF SACRAMENTO PEOPLE CROSSED THE RIVER TO VIEW THE WORK OF THE VOLUNTEERS.

The success of the celebration pulled off on July 4th by the Volunteer Firemen of Washington will be remembered for many years and hundreds of people from points outside the town who came to visit and view the sports left with a happy impression of the members of the department.

It is safe to say that not less than 1,000 people from Sacramento crossed the bridge to see the fun and it is a pleasure to say that nearly every resident of Washington, Riverbank and points along the river north and south remained at this side of the bridge to lend encouragement to the fire boys who so willingly gave their services for their entertainment.

A record was established in one of the events that is deserving of attention. The members of Hose Company No. 1 made a run of 350 feet to fire plugs, attached and laid 300 feet of hose, put on the water nozzle and had water pouring from it in 55 seconds.

The other events were enjoyable and created much enthusiasm and much amusement.

The most thrilling event of the day was the water fight which was staged at 3:45 p. m. Two companies of fifteen men each approached each other with a full force of water pouring from a 3-inch hose with a 1-inch nozzle. Endurance alone could win this fight and it was a wonder to watch the youngsters stand for a full head of water and try to advance under its blistering force. For 30 minutes they battled to get tangled irreparably, which permitted only a decision of the judges to call it a draw.

The other events and winners were as follows:

9:45—Baseball game—Hose Co. No. 1 won; score, 20 to 13; time, 2 hours and 10 minutes.

12:00—Married men's race, 100 yards—A. A. Dassonville, first; H. Armstrong, second.

2:00—Sack race for boys under 15 years, 60 yards—George Flint, first; Johnnie Enwright, second.

2:15—Girls' race, 18 years or under, 100 yards—Olga Caffaro, first; Lillie Lear, second.

2:30—Tug-of-war—Hose Co. No. 2 won; time, 6 minutes.

2:45—Married women's race, 60 yards—Mrs. H. Armstrong, first; Mrs. A. A. Dassonville, second.

3:15—Hose cart race for first water, run 350 feet to plug, lay 300 feet of hose and put on nozzle—Hose Co. No. 1 won; time, 55 seconds.

3:45—Water-battle between Hose Companies Nos. 1 and 2—After 30 minutes of desperate fighting decided a draw.

Judge J. D. Barry with Fire Chief Dave Barry acted as judges of the events. The time-keepers were Ray Peek and Tom White.

Moving pictures of the various events were taken by Photographer McCurry of Sacramento. They will be exhibited in the Empress Theatre commencing this evening and continuing until Tuesday.

The members of the Volunteer Fire Department will attend the theatre in a body next Sunday evening to see what kind of an appearance they make on the screen.

The business men of Washington who donated towards the success of the event were as follows:

C. E. Van Deren & Son	$ 5.00
J. N. Bennetts	3.00
J. Reuter	2.50
R. Derr	5.00

TAKEN SUDDENLY WITH HEART DISEASE

James H. Contell, a contractor of Sacramento, was taken suddenly ill last Saturday while on a fishing trip at Lake Washington and died before help reached him. Fishing in the shade of a tree he was seen to lie down, his companion and nephew believing that he was simply about to take a nap. The latter continued fishing until he thought it about time to go home and then approached Contell to wake him. To his surprise Contell was found to be dead.

During several months past Contell had not been in good health and was under the care of physicians but his death was not expected.

An inquest was held by Deputy Coroner Perkins of Yolo County and a verdict was rendered that death was due to dilation of the heart.

Contell's funeral was held last Monday at which Capitol Lodge, I. O. O. F., conducted the services.

MANY FRIENDS EXPRESS REGRET FOR C. H. MERKLEY

Last Friday morning the earthly remains of C. H. Merkeley were laid away in the City Cemetery in Sacramento. The funeral, although private, was largely attended by intimate friends who refused to be absent. The pallbearers were W. J. Leinberger, J. W. Monroe, P. A. Hart, J. Spicer, Wm Faust and Kent Lovdal.

Woodland (Yolo Co.), June 29.—A. A. Merkley today filed a petition for the probate on the will of Charles Merkeley, who was killed Tuesday night in an automobile accident. The estate is admitted to exceed $10,000, but the exact value is said to range high up in five figures. The widow and children are the heirs.

MARRIED IN THEIR HOME IN THE PRESENCE OF MANY FRIENDS

LIZZIE RODRIGUES BECAME BRIDE OF JOHN ANDREW LAST SUNDAY

Last Sunday at noon John Andrew claimed Lizzie Rodrigues at their home, 321 Ann street. Rev. Father Azevedo of Sacramento performed the ceremony and many intimate friends and relatives witnessed the event and wished the happy young couple a life full of hope and merriment.

Following the wedding a bounteous dinner was served by the bride's sister, Mrs. M. Travis, after which the couple left on the 3:15 train for San Francisco to spend their honeymoon.

The Travis' home was appropriately decorated for the occasion and many useful presents were brought by the invited guests.

Miss Rodrigues has been a resident of Washington and Riverbank during the last two years. She was born in Massachusetts, while her husband is a native of Cape Verde Islands.

John Andrew is an employe of the Silva Netherland Co. of Sacramento. He is a faithful and steady man, very industrious ,and works steadily to help himself along in life.

July 4, 1 p.m.
Someone reportedly knocked on and broke a door on Welland Way, and then left. The resident did not get a look at the suspect, but reported that something similar had happened to a neighbor (the area has had a rash of recent daylight burglaries).

Learn about the Sacto zoo by tuning into local radio show today at noon

Sue Threshie, the public relations director of the Sacramento Zoo, will be the guest today on the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce's radio show, Kaleidoscope. She will bring the latest information of activities taking place at the zoo.

Broadcast on Radio KJAY — 1430 AM from 12:05 to 1 p.m., Kaleidoscope is co-hosted by the Chamber's Steve Roberts and Tiffany Lopes. The show is broadcast live from Johnnie's Sidewalk Pizza, 1301 Merkley Ave. in West Sacramento. The public is invited to come in for a buffet lunch and listen to the show.

Organizations and individuals wishing to participate in the show and discuss topics of local interest are encouraged to contact the Chamber at 371-7042. Included in the program is a local community calendar, with a number of items supplied by the local media.

Next week's show will bring Mayor Cindy Tuttle, looking to the future of West Sacramento.

Sponsors of Kaleidoscope are Johnnie's Sidewalk Pizza and the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce.

Local Chamber has Yolo fair entry materials

Sign-ups are continuing for entries to the 1994 Yolo County Fair.

Request for Sites For Development of a National Sales And Distribution Facility

The City of West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency has received an inquiry from a maker of heavy equipment. The manufacturer, who has requested anonymity, is considering sites in West Sacramento for the development of a national showroom, headquarters, and parts warehouse. Regional functions will also be conducted at this facility, including sales and equipment repairs. In addition, the company requires an outdoor yard area for equipment demonstrations and storage.

Site Requirements

The company wishes to purchase a site meeting the following requirements:

1. Land - minimum 8-12 acres
2. Freeway visibility
3. Freeway access
4. Properly zoned, entitled site - no discretionary approvals beyond a conditional use permit should be required. In West Sacramento eligible sites should be currently zoned C-3, ML, M1, M2 or M3.
5. Ability to sign purchase agreement by end of July 1994 and close escrow by late 1994.

If you control property meeting the company's requirements and you are interested in selling it, please submit by 5:00 p.m., Wednesday, July 13, 1994 a proposal to:

Attention: Les Bowman
West Sacramento Redevelopment Agency
1102 Jefferson Boulevard, Suite D
West Sacramento, CA 95691

Proposal Requirements

Your proposal should include, at a minimum, the following elements.

1. Site Control and Size: Parcel map, aerial photo or other graphic depiction of your site location, size and boundaries. Multiple contiguous sites may be combined to meet the minimum land requirements.
2. Site Improvements: Description of any buildings or other site improvements, including size, age, construction type, parking, tenant improvements, etc.
3. Zoning and Current Uses: Current zoning designation and description of current land uses.
4. Tenancies: List of current tenants and description of lease terms, including space occupied, monthly rent, length of lease, special lease terms, etc. Include copies of current leases, and rent rolls.
5. Ownership: Indicate all property owners, their respective ownership shares, and form of ownership (partnership, individual, etc.)
6. Adjacent Land Uses: Indicate land uses on adjacent properties.
7. Environmental Site Assessment: Indicate any knowledge of potential or existing hazardous materials contamination of the site, including the presence of underground fuel storage tanks.

If Phase I, II or III environmental site assessments have been prepared, please provide copies.

8. Time Schedule: Provide a schedule for key milestones in delivery of the site, including signing of purchase contract, removal of major contingencies, relocation of tenants, close of escrow, etc.
9. Price: Offer price of land and/or structures.
10. Number of Copies: Provide five (5) copies of your proposal.
11. Submission Deadline: Proposals will be accepted until 5:00 p.m. on Wednesday, July 13, 1994.

Please direct any questions regarding this request for sites to Les Bowman, Redevelopment Program Manager, at (916) 373-5843.

Notice of Public Hearing

The City of West Sacramento will be conducting a public hearing on Wednesday, July 20, 1994, at 7:00 p.m. at City Hall, 2101 Stone Boulevard, West Sacramento, CA regarding the following.

The City has four grants from the State of California under the Small Cities Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program. The meeting will be the final meeting for the closeout of the 1991 grant, will cover Annual Grantee Performance Reports to the California Department of Housing and Community Development for 1992-93 grant years, and consideration will be given to applying for additional funds from the State under the Small Cities Program for activities in 1995.

91 STBG 517 Housing Rehabilitation Grant Closeout
92 STBG 590 Housing Rehabilitation Grant
93 STBG 702 Housing Rehabilitation Grant
94 STBG 733 Technical Assistance Grant

The purpose of the public hearing is twofold:

1) To inform the public of the City's progress in completing the work under its CDBG grants in relation to the objectives established for those grants, according to the requirements of state and federal law, and to accept public comment regarding the City's performance under these grants.

2.) To solicit public comment for activities for which the City could apply under CDBG funding in 1995. The program is primarily designed to assist low-income residents (those earning no more than 80% of the Yolo County median income) and can be used for a variety of housing, community development, and economic development activities.

Eligible activities under General and Housing Programs include Rehabilitation, Public and Community Facilities, Acquisition and Relocation. Examples of eligible Economic Development activities include Planning and Technical Assistance grants and Reservation of Funds.

The total amount of funds the City may apply for in one year is $860,000 or $1.2 million in any two consecutive years. The maximum grant the City may receive under the General Allocation or Economic Development allocation is $500,000. The maximum amount the City may receive under the Planning/Technical Assistance allocation is $30,000 for economic development activities and the $30,000 for general or housing activities.

Written comments are invited and should be received no later than the day of the public hearing on July 20, 1994. Written comments may be sent to the attention of Mary Shearer, 1102 Jefferson Blvd., Suite D, West Sacramento, CA 95691. A public information file is available for review at this address.

All members of the community are invited to comment on the grant use and purposes, especially low income residents who benefit from the CDBG program. Neither the City nor the State of California discriminates on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, or disability. City Hall is handicapped accessible.

NL July 6 (135)

PUBLIC HEARING NOTICE

The City Council of the City of West Sacramento will conduct a public hearing on July 20 1994 at 7:00 PM or as soon thereafter as possible, on the following. The hearing will be held in the City Council Chambers, 2101 Stone Blvd., West Sacramento, CA. Interested persons may appear and be heard on the issue(s) listed.

1. To discuss grantee performance of West Sacramento's CDBG Program and 1991 Grant close out.

"If you discount the amount of money Maurice raised himself, then more money came from Southern California than from inside the district," he added. "I think that's an issue. It speaks towards the ideological issue, and it speaks to whom he's beholden."

McGowan, 46, currently serves as the president of the board of supervisors for Yolo County. If elected, he will leave that post mid-term, as he did to his West Sacramento City Council position to win election to the county board.

McGowan's wife, Sue, works for the Bank of America and has served on a number of city commissions. The couple have a daughter, Becky, who recently graduated from Sonoma State University. The McGowan's live in a home on Park Blvd.

Mike McGowan was elected to the first such city council when West Sacramento incorporated in 1987, and was elected by the rest of the council to act as the city's first mayor. McGowan won re-election to the city council during a heated contest in 1990, and won a 1992 election to the county board of supervisors.

He said he feels this experience gives him a good viewpoint to serve on the state legislature, and that the decision to run for state senate was one made by himself.

"I've never been requested to run for anything in my life, including this race," he commented. "I saw no other strong candidates, and I received moral support from party officials. I was comfortable with the district, and uncomfortable with Johannessen because of what he stands for."

taxes ourselves.

"By doing that and cutting out the middle-man, the money that we raise dollar for dollar is all going to go eventually for schools in West Sacramento," he said.

The cost of paying someone to sell the bonds was expected to be about $300,000.

"We're not paying bondsmen, we're not paying back people who invested in the bonds who are not in our district. In addition, the number of years that these taxes will run will drop from between twenty-one and twenty-four more years to seven more years.

"We're going to raise the same amount in seven years by collecting the taxes ourselves that we would have raised in twenty-three years. And the amount of money the district is actually going to raise, between 1.1 and 1.2 million dollars, will be available for school construction," continued Miller.
